City Orders New Water Line On Blvd.

Removal Of Leaky Old Pipe Installed In 1904 Begins Monday

Work will begin on Monday on the removal of old water mains and installation of new lines on Sierra Madre blvd., between Hermosa and Michillinda avenues. The work will take approximately three weeks to complete and will be done by city employees. It will be paid for out of water department revenue.

The old main, laid in 1904, has sprung so many leaks that cost of its upkeep necessitated the installation of new and heavier pipe. With a 36-year record for service from the old line, it is estimated the new line will not have to be replaced for at least 50 years. The work will be done in sections so that the boulevard, six feet from the south curb, will not all be torn up at one time. Dead ends in the present pipe line allow stagnant water to accumulate and has heretofore been flushed out through fire hydrants. However water will circulate continuously through the new pipe lines.

Bulldogs Football Season Ends Friday

Pasadena Junior College will close its 1940 football season Friday night when it clashes with Glendale J.C. in the Rose Bowl in the annual inter-city game.

Sparked by "Lightning Jake" Leicht, the Bulldogs have made a brilliant comeback in their last three games, after a bad slump in mid-season. With the Stockton speedster functioning in top form, Pasadena toppled one of the strongest teams in Northern California, Sacramento, to the tune of 14-6, after walloping Compton, Metropolitan Conference co-champions, 27-0 the preceding week. Last Friday the Bulldogs turned back Weber College of Ogden, Utah, 12-0, to chalk up their third straight win and their sixth of the current season.

Real Giant Makes City's Tallest Men Look Like Midgets

A "tip-topper" that made Jim Feasley, Jr., and Milton Steinberger look almost like midgets visited Sierra Madre Thursday, as the guest of Happy's Liquor Store. He is Jack Earle, one of the world's tallest males, and salesman for a liquor concern.

A former Barnum and Bailey entertainer, he is in no sense a freak except for his exceptional height, 8'6 1/4". He is 34 years old and weighs 395 pounds. According to Earle his family are all of normal height. He has two brothers. One is 6 feet 1 inch, and the other 6 feet 2 inches tall. His father measures only 5 feet 9 and his mother 5 feet 5. His mother remembers that he weighed only three and three-quarters pounds at birth.

When photographers searched the town for the tallest local product, they nabbed young Heasley who fitted in snugly under the giant's outstretched arm.

250 Sierra Madre Voters Are Dropped From Registry List

Names of approximately 250 Sierra Madre voters will be stricken from county registration rolls for failure to vote either at the August primary or November general election when Registrar of Voters William M. Kerr completes compilation of votes cast in the November 5 election.

All persons failing to vote at both elections must re-register before being able to vote again. Registrar Kerr announced that he and his assistants are once more accepting voters registrations who desire to qualify at the next city election. Registrations are being taken now at the city hall.

Women To Organize Local Chapter Of Home Defense

Local chapter of a national organization known as Woman's Division of Home Defense, and endorsed by Eleanor Roosevelt, is to be organized by interested Sierra Madre women at a meeting in the East Pasadena American Legion Hall, December 11, at 7:30 p.m. Present at the first meeting to help the group get under way will be Mrs. Inga N. Erickson, state organizer for the association.

A number of local women have indicated their interest in the movement that will instruct women in preparation for emergency in war time and augment classes now being conducted by the Red Cross. All women are invited to attend the meeting.

Christmas Tea Will Bring Joy To Many Christmas Morning

Sierra Madreans who are just beginning to worry over appropriate small Christmas gifts will have opportunity to choose from a wide and delightful assortment at the annual Christmas tea and sale of the Woman's Guild of the Church of the Ascension which will be held tomorrow afternoon from 2:30 until 5 o'clock at the Church of the Ascension Parish House, according to Mrs. Harry Holland, president of the Guild.

Tea hostesses working under the chairmanship of Miss Marian Vanner are Mrs. Francis Kitzman, Miss Daisy Hawks, Mrs. Thomas Meader, Mrs. Elmer Pulling and daughters, the Misses Aileen and Mary Pulling; Mrs. Eleanor J. Bourne, Miss Jeanette Shafer, Mrs. Edward A. Davy and Miss Mary Davis.

Mrs. Arthur Wilson and Miss Cross will have charge of the White Elephant table. All kinds of cooked foods will be sold by Mrs. Mark D. Welsher and Mrs. Claude Allen, and fancy work and gifts will be sold by Mrs. Carl Pegler. Mrs. Theodore Dunham and Miss Daisy Hawks. Proceeds from the affair will be used for the Christmas philanthropies carried on each year by the Guild. All townspeople will be welcomed.

Deadline

Today, Thursday, December 5, is the last day for the payment of county, school and city taxes before the usual delinquent penalty is added. Payments made by mail must be postmarked today to escape the penalty.

PLEDGE IS OUT TO SEE THAT THERE ARE NO FORGOTTEN CHILDREN CHRISTMAS MORN

The one philanthropy that is entirely local in its benefits is the Christmas program the Volunteer Firemen are in the midst of and that they launch year after year. The men who come to your door to sell tickets to the firemen's Christmas dance, December 21, and to solicit unused toys, may grow weary as they cover block after block of homes, but their interest and enthusiasm never flag because they have experienced the thrill of delivering to grateful and sometimes tearful parents the made-over toys for children who would never have them otherwise.

You know as well as I that nothing is more heart rending than a child without toys at Christmas time. Other children blessed with an abundance of them gather in groups on Christmas morning to show their treasures in a burst of childish pride. But too often there is one youngster, born of less fortunate parents, who hangs on the outside of the group and suffers as only a child can suffer. Don't let our thoughtlessness as adults contribute to a situation that can so easily be prevented. There are unused playthings in our own town for every child to share in a blessed and happy Christmas and there

Many Aliens Here Fail To Register

Tardy Foreigners Must Sign Up On Specified Nights After December 14

Postmaster Ray O. Caukin has announced a December 14th deadline for all daytime registrations of aliens after which time postal employees will be too busy with Christmas mail to take time out for fingerprinting and acceptance of alien registration forms. Two or three evenings will be designated for registrations, dates for which are not yet set but may be ascertained later at the post office.

In spite of the approaching deadline (December 26) and heavy penalties imposed for failure to register, the postmaster estimates that there are at least 30 aliens in Sierra Madre who have failed to register. Up until last night 17 aliens had complied with the law.

There is no charge for registration and aliens are allowed to study questions carefully before being required to submit the forms. All aliens, registered or not, must report any change of address within five days to Immigration and Naturalization Service of Justice in Washington, through the post office.

Reduction In Gas Rates Coming Soon

Railroad Commission Fixes January 15 As Date For Operation Of New Schedule

Customers of Southern Counties Gas Co. will receive reductions in their bills totaling $300,000 annually, President Ray L. Riley of the California Railroad Commission, announced this week.

The reduction was ordered, Mr. Riley said, following completion of the Commission's annual investigation of the utility. The new rates will become effective with bills dated January 15, 1941, and thereafter.

During the next few weeks members of the Commission's staff will work out details of the reduction in conjunction with representatives of the utility and the specific new rates will be announced prior to the effective date of the reduction," Mr. Riley said.

The Commission is convinced, upon the basis of the exhaustive and complete study made of this Company's operations during the last year, that this reduction is just and fair to both the customers and the utility.

However, it is well to keep in mind the quick changing conditions present in the country today, particularly reflected by the probable additional burden of taxation which the national defense program has produced. The extent of these new defense taxes cannot now be predicted.

In view of this situation it is of vital importance that the Commission be kept thoroughly advised as to the future trends of business of the utilities. The Commission's success in producing utility rates which are among the lowest in the country, has been possible as a result of the fact that it has had an adequate staff to supply the information so necessary to successful regulation.

"We believe that the protection afforded by the Commission to the people of California is more vital now even than during the last decade and should be safeguarded."

Last year the rates of the Southern Counties Gas Company, which serves Ventura and Orange counties and portions of Santa Barbara and Los Angeles counties, were reduced by $250,000, also on an annual basis.

State Becomes Big Realty Dealer

FOR SALE OR RENT—Three Million Acres of Farm Land and One Hundred and Fifty Thousand City Lots.

State Controller Harry B. Riley figuratively hung out that sign today. As custodian of all property needed to the state for non-payment of taxes he is one of the biggest landlords in California, having tax delinquent property in every county and city in the state. His listings include everything from country clubs to gold mines and wineries.

THE PRICELESS INGREDIENT

City To Don Holiday Garb December 11

Daily Decorated Trees Will Blossom Out—Hostesses To Preside At Stores

Although it is hard to believe that Christmas is only 20 days away when Sierra Madreans are basking in August weather in December and reading of Eastern blizzards, there will be no doubt left in their minds after December 11th.

Merchants and members of the Chamber of Commerce are completing plans for turning the city into a blaze of Christmas splendor with Christmas tree-lined street decorations that will make townspeople and visitors realize that the holiday season has come to Sierra Madre in spite of summer temperatures.

Every merchant will have a brightly decorated tree in front of his shop, and Christmas shoppers will be greeted by a gracious hostess on December 14th who will help them select gifts from the many attractive displays of merchandise purchased especially for the holiday season.

Hostess day, open to all merchants who wish to participate, is being instituted this year through the cooperation of the Woman's Club and the Chamber of Commerce.

Each club woman will draw the name of a store in which she will preside on this day to greet customers as well as ten of her own friends whom she will invite to visit the store. Special displays are planned to tempt shoppers with their gift lists, and townspeople will become acquainted with the fact that just about every gift need be had in the wide range of merchandise that may be purchased in Sierra Madre stores. Merchants have already displayed keen enthusiasm for the plan that will put a prominent club woman in each of the stores.

Members of the Woman's Club will be given their store assignments at a drawing to be held at the clubhouse.

Mexicans Arrested Here Held For Quiz By Sheriffs Office

Expert marksman's badges issued by the sheriff's office and other contents of a truck driven by two young Mexicans arrested at the public library on disorderly conduct charges Friday night caused them to be turned over to the sheriff's office after the spent two days in the Sierra Madre jail.

They were taken into custody by local police on complaint of Miss Lulu Moore, librarian, while creating a disturbance at the library. When a policeman arrived at the library one of the pair escaped. He was later arrested when attempting to carry on a conversation with his companion through the jail windows. They were booked as Ned Zettas, aged 28 and Del Faro, aged 29. When they were brought before Judge Tom Neale Monday he fined them each $12.50 with the alternative of 25 days in jail, but suspended the sentence when the sheriff's office requested that the men be turned over to deputies for further investigation as to matter found in the truck.

200 Members Needed By Red Cross

Over 800 Enrolled But Hope Held Quota Of 500 Will Be Doubled

Commanding Sierra Madre for its whole-hearted support of the Red Cross Roll Call drive for members and funds to carry on additional work necessitated by the national defense program.

Chairman Thomas Schwartz announced conclusion of the 1941 campaign yesterday and thanked not only townspeople but roll call workers and Mrs. A. E. O'Banion, chairman of the drive, for their highly successful efforts.

Although returns are not complete, there are 800 members enrolled to date who contributed $1204.37. It is hoped that even though the drive is officially over, the number of members can be increased to 1000 to double the quota of 500 members.

The float will depict General George Washington astride a dashing white charger. Both the Father of Our Country and the white horse are to be life size, the horse done in white carnations and General Washington in flowers in colors of the uniform of the Continental army.

Title of the float will be made of deep blue delphinium against a white background in the front, underneath a large U.S. shield. Name of the city will appear on the side skirts of the entry. The stirring picture of horse and rider and utter simplicity of the design have won it warmest approval of the discerning. Though no final decision has been reached on the subject, it is probable that the float will be no riders on the entry to distract attention from the commanding figure of Washington.

The seven beautiful girls who will ride on the float of the tournament Queen were selected by judges Wednesday. The Queen will be picked out of these seven within the next few days, the remaining six to be the Princesses constituting her court of honor.

The seven were the final selections from a field of more than 3,000 girl students of Pasadena Junior College. A well known Sierra Madre young lady was last to be eliminated.

The girls notified of their selection for the Queen's float after the long series of elimination trials and one of whom will be the Queen, are: Elizabeth Allensworth, Altadena; Ellen Harmon, Rosemead; Patricia Hops, Altadena; Claudine Radke, Altadena; Sally Stanton, La Canada; Anne Stratton, Pasadena, and Dorothy Young, also of Pasadena. Not only will the girls ride on the float leading the parade, but will be feted at the coronation ceremonies at the Civic Auditorium the night of December 26, and at innumerable public and semi-public functions beginning the very minute of the Queen's selection.

NEW PRESIDENT OF KIWANIS NAMES CLUB COMMITTEES; SUPERVISOR TO SPEAK

How to be a Kiwanis president in one not-too-easy lesson, was what Dr. Lee Evans, president-elect, learned when he attended a class conducted by the local Kiwanis district in Monrovia.

Sunday, Kiwanians, at their meeting, dispensed with a speaker to turn the meeting into a Kiwanis round-table discussion among members. Conversation ran something like this: "How's business, Joe?" "Not bad, Bill, not bad; sure hope I get a tall blonde for hostess day in my shop." The meeting was a prelude to the dinner-dance and installation of district officers at Midweek County Club, Tuesday evening, attended by Kiwanians and their wives.

Final plans for Civic Day, next Tuesday, were made when city officials are to be honored by the club. William Smith, superintendent of the first district, will tell guests what Kiwanians are sponsoring in their club activities.

Dr. Evans released the names of committee chairmen he will ask to serve with him during the next year. They are: program chairman, Gerald Smith; education, Dr. Raymond Simpson; public affairs, Robert Wright; publicity, Dr. John Woehler; reception, Al Madin; captain of the guards, Irwin Roberts; house, Dale Langley; music, Hobart McLaughlin; photography, Rudy Hartman; classification, Frank Spencer; membership, Dick Lees; attendance, Dr. Jack Miller; finance, R. C. Lewis; club relations, Bill Burr.

Clarence Huntsinger was appointed chairman of a three-way committee comprising boys and girls work, underprivileged children, and vocational guidance.

Award Prizes For Art Week Exhibits

Community Dinner Concludes City's Observance Of National Event

Concluding local observance of National Art Week, Sierra Madre merchants, artists and patrons of the arts attended a community dinner at Wistaria Vine Gardens Saturday evening to award prizes by popular vote to Alfred J. Dewey for his "Spring Green," voted the best liked painting exhibited during the week, and to William Burr for his attractive window display at the Southern California Edison Co. office.

Mr. Dewey was presented with a silver plaque, and Mr. Burr received a cup commanding him for his splendid cooperation in exhibiting the work of Helen Hawley Narozny and Mrs. DeForest Stoll. Included in his window, also, were photographs by Ida Fuenstueck and sculptured plaques.

Miss Rita Kissen, guest speaker at the dinner and author of juvenile "best-sellers," stressed the importance of artists' work on modern life. In her comments she emphasized the fact that art is permeating everyone's life through the expanding field of commercial art and design. Interesting to guests were Miss Kissen's experiences with children as a teacher of the famous Montessori system as well as her work with noted artists who have illustrated her books. Climaxing her remarks she read a poem she had written lauding England for its brave stand, and for which she received recognition from the King and Queen of England.

Runnerup for first award for the most popular painting was Bernard Wynn who received a $5 merchandise order for his portrait of Carol Key, "White Satin." Mrs. A. Ward McIvor's picture of roses shown in the Byron Hop Jewelry Store was third by popular acclaim, also receiving a prize.

Four generations were represented in the group, the oldest being Mrs. Elizabeth Howland, 85 years of age, who is the mother of H. P. Howland. Tommy Rock, three weeks old grandson of the Howlands, represented the fourth generation. Mr. Howland, who has been a Pasadena letter carrier for the last 29 years, is in a direct line of descent from John Howland who came to America in the Mayflower in 1620.

All clubwomen who have not yet made reservations for luncheon following the meeting, should do so before Monday, as none will be accepted after that date.

Young Pupils Win Contest For New PTA Memberships

If any of you can remember back as far as the last of October, you will recall that the P.T.A. had a membership drive. It was very ably conducted by Mrs. Melba Seifert and the results were most gratifying.

Mrs. Pavelko's class, the 8th grade, brought in more memberships than the total class enrollment and won the first prize of $5.00. Miss Wone's room, grade 3, won the second prize of $2.50. This was particularly gratifying as the upper grades have a distinct advantage over little people when it comes to salesmanship.

Miss Wone's grade is studying early Sierra Madre days, and with the prize money purchased a picture of the Sierra Madre foothills, the work of a local artist, the late Mr. Schneebeger.

Now may I remind you of the regular meeting of the P.T.A. to be held at 7:30 tonight (Thursday), December 5, at the school auditorium. Judge Frank C. Collier will speak on the "Relation of the Family to the Court." Everyone is invited, whether members of the P.T.A. or not.

MARCH OF RIMES

By H. F. NOAKE

MUCH ADO ABOUT SOMETHING
The other night the wife says, "Whit, it's time you loosened up a bit; turn off that noisy radio, we're going to see a picture show." Protesting, but to no avail the wife and me and little Dale set out at once, for Cohen's Elite, where thirty cents buy any seat. For children under twelve, a dime, but did I have myself a time when some smart aleck in a cage insisted Dale looked twice his age. We sat beside a family group, who must have lived on onion soup, and one of them, a big fat lout, kept barging in, then barging out. And right behind us, if you please a dame began to cough and sneeze; then, suddenly, our son and heir just disappeared, we knew not where. Our search led past the druggist's shop, where Dale was guzzling soda pop; then home, as fast as we could go to peace—and rest—and radio. (P.S. The picture, by the way, was, "Father Takes a Holiday.")

Marriage Of Figaro
At The Playhouse

"The Marriage of Figaro," gay and witty Mozart opera, will be given in English on Sunday, December 15th, at 8 p.m. at the Pasadena Playhouse, with Richard Lert as the guiding genius of the production and conductor of the performance. Mr. Lert's gift for discovering new singing talent is well known and for "Figaro," he has chosen a cast of young Southern California professionals, who will add still further to his reputation as "maker of stars."

Virginia Card, under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Wayer, Olympic high diver and star of a recent Jerome Kern Broadway light opera, and Harold Peterson, runner-up of the last Metropolitan Auditions of the Air, are two of the principals. Original stage settings and colorful costumes and a symphonic orchestra of 30, feature the production, presented by a non-profit group and sponsored by the Coleman Chamber Music Association.

WADDICOR PROMOTED

R. A. Waddicor, who has lived at 92 East Grand View avenue for two and a half years, has been appointed dam tender at the recently completed Eaton Dam, and with Mrs. Waddicor will move to the dam before December 15. Mr. Waddicor has held the position of hydrographer with the Los Angeles Flood Control District for 12 years. His advancement came through a civil service appointment.

British Children
In Canada To Have
Happy Christmas

Because of the generous response of Sierra Madreans and their friends many small British evacuees now living in Canada will enjoy a real Christmas, as approximately $63 was presented this week by Mrs. C. E. Rapoolee to Mrs. J. Andrew Hall, president of the local chapter B.W.R. to be forwarded to Canada for the children's Christmas fund. The amount was raised at the benefit tea, white elephant and food sale given Tuesday afternoon by Commander and Mrs. C. E. Rapoolee at their charming home at 491 West Montecito avenue.

Right and Wrong
Way of Cooking

There's distinctly a right way and a wrong way of cooking vegetables over top burners, as the illustration below clearly shows. Call it Old School and New School if you will, but it's win or lose, according to the method you are accustomed to use

For years it was common practice to drown vegetables in water, cook them at full speed in an uncovered saucepan with a rising cloud of steam which carried with it many of the soluble vital vegetable elements—although no homemaker was aware that this was happening.

The modern scientific method is quite different; vegetables should be cooked gently in a little water, according to their type, size and quantity, using a cover on the utensil. Each top burner of the modern gas range offers a controlled simmering temperature which permits boiling to proceed quietly and effectively; then the greatest percentage of food elements is preserved, making the vegetables more nutritious as well as more attractive to serve.

There is nothing to be gained by rapid boiling in a covered pan. It is only a waste of fuel and the moisture in the vegetables is evaporated too quickly and unnecessarily.

YOUR HUGE TAX BILL

Tax bills now being paid by the property owners of Los Angeles county for their county, school and special district governments total $86,636,735, a decrease of $3,280,899 from the levies for the same governments for 1939-40, according to a study of tax levies in California counties just made public by California Taxpayers' association. Los Angeles is the one county in the state which shows decreases in each of the government levels studied. Taxes levied for cities and for the Metropolitan and certain other water districts are not included in the association stated.

Itemized, the tax levy for the county, school, and special districts for the current year shows the following decreases: county current purposes, total levy $38,610,389, down $1,562,127 from 1939-40; county bonds $3,271,614 down $143,685 from last year's levy; school current purposes, $33,270,997 down $1,37,419 from the levy for 1939-40; school bonds, $9,313,169 down $87,751 from last year's levy; special district taxes, $2,170,568 down $119,917 from the levy for 1939-40.

These property tax levies are only a part of the billion dollars in taxes that will be collected from the people of California by the Federal, state and local governments this year, the association pointed out. The county, school and special districts this year levied $235,271,473 on the property in the state, an increase of $3,353,202 over last year. To this must be added levies for city governments, which amount to about $65,000,000 and levies for irrigation, reclamation, and drainage districts, which levy another $40,000,000 on property over the state as a whole. In all, local governments levy about $340,000,000 on property this year, the state will collect about $320,000,000, and the Federal government will collect at least another $330,000,000—in round numbers $1,000,000,000—or 147 for each man, woman and child of the 7,00,000 people in California.

The first half of the local tax bills for this year must be paid by December 5 and there is nothing the people can do about it, the Taxpayers' association declared. However, taxpayers in every community in California should start now to let their local governing boards—the supervisors, school trustees, city councilmen—know that they expect decreases all along the line next year. Early in the spring these governing boards will begin to prepare the budgets upon which the tax levies for next year will be based. Now is the time for taxpayers to help these governing board members set their budget policies—for lower expenditures and lower tax levies.

 Watch Tower

By Perley Poore Sheehan

TWO kinds of wrens, four or five varieties of sparrow; and then, phoebe, towhees, thrashers, woodpeckers (also two sorts), titmice, bushtits... These last not much bigger than humming-birds; so small that for a time all you may see of them is a faint and scattered vibration running here and there through the garden — while everywhere else the leaves are still. Bushtits traveling in flocks of a hundred or more, yet each bird working like an individual, indifferent to the movement of its fellows or of the flock in general. All intent on cleaning the world where they pass, of larvae and scale. Agile, gray, with a glint of iridescence about them and as quick as light. They're here, there, everywhere, then nowhere at all. Gone! Leaving behind them a hint of fairyland, or of your own long-lost world of innocence and faith.

IT'S a world close by, here in Sierra Madre — one you can look right into from your window — if you happen to have a garden engaging to birds, and then a dog to keep stray cats away. Especially if you feed the birds. In this respect we're lucky. For friends of ours are in the business of processing nuts. All sorts of nuts: peanuts, pecans, Brazils. And we get whatever isn't used — pounds and pounds of broken kernels or of material otherwise not up to standard. But manna for the birds. And this we scatter half a dozen times a day along the garden-path just outside our window. And do the birds respond? Do they? Fluttering down like a gust of falling leaves almost before our back is turned. Cleaning up the nuts so fast that often the supply is exhausted and we have to give them mere cracked corn instead. Which also they'll eat. Seldom, however, without some faint suggestion of polite tolerance and understanding of California publishers.

No newspaper which publishes this column asked us to write an article on freedom of the press. In fact, no newspaper which sees fit to run our weekly offerings has ever tried to tell us what to write in all the years we have been writing it. That fact, in itself, is really of considerable significance, for there is no other nation on the face of the globe, in all probability, where a columnist would be given such latitude.

A few days ago (and that's the reason for this column) we chanced to read an interview with Hans Lachmann-Mosse, former publisher of the once famous Berlin Tageblatt, but now a resident of California, on what happened to Germany's free press when Hitler came to power. And what we had to say of what happened there stirred us tremendously—because, if America is careless and unprepared, there can be no doubt: IT MIGHT HAPPEN HERE!

NOT so the jay. You'd be watching the flock of smaller birds at their feed — linnets, warblers, black-faced nut-hatches; and suddenly up these would go like clods from a blast — to disappear and remain out of sight; while, taking his time, a jay would swagger down from the nearest tree. Look out, kids! He's not only tough, he's in uniform. Then, one day when a jay came in like that, we saw that a pair of young doves had lingered on, apparently unaware of the jay's arrival. And it made us nervous. Doves were so gentle and timid. While, meantime, the jay clattered about showing signs of becoming peevish. He wanted the place to himself. And finally he must have said so in a way that couldn't have been polite. For one of the doves turned and looked at him as if shocked. Or was he asking him to say that again? For the dove started toward him, as the jay backed away; whereupon the dove ran in to attack, but the jay had turned and flown away. And all this time the other dove—we think it must have been the lady dove—had gone on eating. She hadn't so much as raised her head. Not because she was greedy or indifferent. We could tell. She just seemed to be too well-bred.

It wasn't a hard thing to do. To lose a 24-year business is nothing compared to losing freedom." And then, this former German editor said: "Enough of the past. You have a glorious country here. You have freedom. I hope you appreciate it!"

Hans Lachmann-Mosse said very complimentary things about our California newspapers. "The speed and thought your editorial writers put into their columns is wonderful," he said. "It's all wonderful; everything here is wonderful."

Perhaps you know why we wrote this column, dedicated to editors we have never met. For in

IF THIS SAFEGUARD IS LOST EVERY SEMBLANCE OF FREEDOM GOES WITH IT

By RALPH H. TAYLOR
 (Executive Secretary, Agricultural Council of California)

ALMOST any American citizen worth his salt, if asked whether he believed in a free press, would doubtless answer "Yes."

Freedom of the press is part of our American heritage, just like freedom of speech and freedom to vote for the man of our choice on election day.

But the things we get used to, unfortunately, we often fail to appreciate. A husky, healthy man seldom appreciates his good health until he has a serious illness. A farmer accustomed to rolling hills and broad acres, seldom evaluates them properly until he has been cooped up, for a time, in a city apartment. And so it is quite probable that many of us—because we have never known anything else—have failed to place a proper value on a free press.

The writer of this column, however, happens to have a lively appreciation of free press, born of experience over a considerable period of years. The editor of this newspaper, it might be pointed out, is under no compulsion to publish this column. In all likelihood, he often, or at least on occasion, disagrees with some of the opinions expressed in it. Yet this column of comment on general problems, is published in approximately 400 newspapers every week in California. And its "run" has increased down through the years, even when editors sat down to their typewriters and wrote heated editorials criticizing thoughts expressed in it. That, in this writer's opinion, is a splendid example of freedom of the press in practical operation—and this columnist, who doesn't know, except by correspondence, more than one-fourth of the editors who run his copy, has good reason to be tolerant and understanding of California publishers.

No newspaper which publishes this column asked us to write an article on freedom of the press. In fact, no newspaper which sees fit to run our weekly offerings has ever tried to tell us what to write in all the years we have been writing it. That fact, in itself, is really of considerable significance, for there is no other nation on the face of the globe, in all probability, where a columnist would be given such latitude.

A few days ago (and that's the reason for this column) we chanced to read an interview with Hans Lachmann-Mosse, former publisher of the once famous Berlin Tageblatt, but now a resident of California, on what happened to Germany's free press when Hitler came to power. And what we had to say of what happened there stirred us tremendously—because, if America is careless and unprepared, there can be no doubt: IT MIGHT HAPPEN HERE!

"I can speak freely," he said. "I have no relatives in Germany, and I'm never going to return. We were a very poor country after the World War, but we were free men. Perhaps we were too free and our government too weak. Hitler saw no reason why a man in a free country shouldn't have a private army.

"I was busy in those days. Besides my three papers, I leased more than 50 magazines. Hitler was busy, too. He saw no reason why a free Reich Chancellor in a weak country shouldn't dissolve the Reichstag. Next the cabinet meeting was called. It is common knowledge that the two ministers who disappeared the next day were kidnapped by Hitler.

"I was not unprepared for the events of 1933. I saw the clouds gathering and sent my family to Switzerland and safety. Publishers meetings were called by the new leader. Next came suggestions and warnings; finally, threats. I went on about my business of publishing the truth until the day the uniformed men came. 'We are grieved that you overlooked our suggestions,' they said, spreading the confiscation papers before me. An army automatic was at my neck, so I signed.

"It wasn't a hard thing to do. To lose a 24-year business is nothing compared to losing freedom."

And then, this former German editor said: "Enough of the past. You have a glorious country here. You have freedom. I hope you appreciate it!"

Hans Lachmann-Mosse said very complimentary things about our California newspapers. "The speed and thought your editorial writers put into their columns is wonderful," he said. "It's all wonderful; everything here is wonderful."

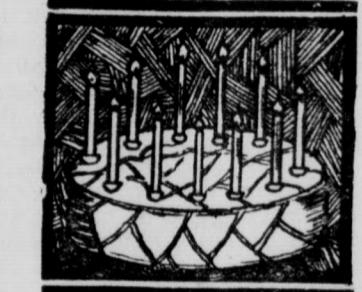

Perhaps you know why we wrote this column, dedicated to editors we have never met. For in countries where freedom of the press has died, liberty has died. Without being too sentimental, we say "God Bless America." And we might add, God Save the American Free Press!

During the last ten years it was the misguided hope of many

British statesmen that Russia and Germany would take up arms against each other and proceed to destroy themselves in a titanic struggle. During the last year it has been the misguided hope of many in Britain and the United States that Russia would cast her lot with the democracies and wage war against Germany. The passing months and weeks, and most recently the visit of Foreign Minister Molotov to Berlin, should effectively dampen any such hopes, perhaps for good.

It has become increasingly clear that Russia's sole aim is to prolong the war in Europe without participating in the conflict herself. She seeks neither a victory for Germany nor a victory for Britain, but a stalemate in which the belligerents will have bled themselves white, at which time it will be Russia's turn to play the conqueror. During the course of the present war, the Soviets have impartially sent supplies both to Britain and Germany, tilting the scales of their aid according to the progress of the struggle between those two countries. The potential enemy of Rus-

West Coast representation on that commission. Because of political expediency or other reasons, Pacific Coast states have not yet won the recognition they are entitled to. The maritime industry plays a large part in the economic life of the states which flank the Pacific. On this coast are several of the nation's greatest ports. The defense program has restored life to the Pacific Coast shipyards, with California alone embarking on a $250 million for naval fighting craft in addition to the construction of new vessels for the merchant marine. All those factors attest the importance of maritime enterprises to Far Western states, and the need of men on the Maritime Commission from this area thoroughly familiar with the problems of these enterprises. California members of Congress should make it their job to work for such representation when future vacancies occur.

In a week which has seen one pastor jailed for refusing to register for conscription, students of a theological seminary sent to prison for likewise refusing, and a die-hard campaign begun to repeal the aforesaid law, only Arthur Morel, New Hampshire contractor, has provided the surefire method of avoiding the draft. He announces the birth of his 25th child. Of that number 22 are living. You can't beat 22 air-tight excuses!

Stevenson who has been in the Huntington Memorial Hospital for the last two weeks as the result of painful injuries and shock which she sustained in an auto crash in Pasadena in the middle of November, is expected to return to her home here this week. Dr. M. H. A. Peterson is the attending physician.

STUFF: Jim Heasley, Jr., trying to buy a pair of pants to fit his tall frame, reporting back at the NEWS office, in desperation, that there just "ain't no such thing" — Emil Smith falling for a gag that had everyone laughing—all but those who fell for it too—a panhandler asked him for transportation into town, and by the time the "borrower" had canvassed the town he could have taken a bus ride to San Diego — a couple of hungry newspaper gals bumming a dollar from Art Johnson, officer on duty, after the art reception.

• A day I plan to spend when the NEWS declares a holiday... breakfast with Mrs. R. W. Solomon and a long conversation over coffee, with elbows on the table afterwards... lunch with sweet Mrs. J. S. Billheimer ... an evening with Judge and Mrs. Tom Neal and Nina.

• How can we feel Christmasy with mid-summer weather, and yet Christmas plants were never more abundant and beautiful—the red-berried pyracanthus, purple heather just turning long stemmed poinsettias, and yellow trees dropping their leaves. I've even seen spring bulbs in bloom on the hillsides ... we might as well call it Eden and let it go at that.

—Florence Bertsch.

• A rambling gal also runs across people with great dreams, plans for doing good and making lives better. I recently met Jewel Amos over at the new recreation center—a girl who still worries about the children she helped at another center that had to close just when it became most useful. We walked through the big building with its badminton and basketball courts, its numerous game facilities; and she said, "I'm sure everyone in Sierra Madre has given something to our work here. I've never been in such a town. Are they always like this?" Of course they are, and you'll never want to live anywhere else, Jewel.

• We looked at sample toys and Christmas gifts that the children will be taught to make in the arts and crafts room—a duck on a sewing box with scissors in his beak—a donkey pulling a cart full of cigarettes, simple gifts little children can make.

• You're just beginning to see, Jewel Amos, how hard Sierra Madreans work to put over anything they believe in. And the recreational center where children can work and play together under first rate supervision, a center where they can go instead of wandering the streets aimlessly, is one of their finest achievements.

Church to honor Rudyard Kipling

The architect's sketch above shows the Church of the Recessional, now under construction as a memorial to Rudyard Kipling at Forest Lawn Memorial Park, Glendale. Dating back to Saxon times, the new church will be an exact reproduction of the Parish Church of St. Margaret in Rottingdean, England, where Kipling was inspired to write his famous poem, "Recessional."

Dr. Hubert Eaton (right), chairman of the board of Forest Lawn, selected this church as a companion to the Wee Kirk o' the Heather and the Little Church of the Flowers after visiting dozens of historic English edifices.

dry weeds and brush. Tickets for our big Christmas party are selling as usual with everyone saying they are anxious to get to the Party. From now until after the New Year, firemen will have lots to do with selling tickets, preparing baskets and all that goes with the Christmas functions . . . Get our tickets early.

FIRE FLAMES
By One of the Boys
Fred Lewis, our most amiable and handsome fireman, has just received a brand spankin' new uniform. Look out girls! Dressed in the blue serge of a fireman, and with his upper lip adorned with a mustachio, Fred had the whole crowd green with envy at our last meeting. It would be dangerous for him to be left alone. Sound advice to Mrs. Lewis would be for her to call by phone immediately after our meetings.

"Sparks from an incinerator at dawn yesterday ignited a pile of debris in the Gilfillan Bros. radio factory at 1815 Ventura Blvd., and within an hour flames destroyed the plant with a loss estimated to be more than $500,000." This was taken from a Sunday morning paper and is only a reminder that substantiates our continuous claims that it is dangerous to be careless with incinerators. After setting fire to incinerator, never go far away from it and never have such a large fire that the flames emerge from the doors and chimney. We are surrounded by much

DISTRESS IN CHINA TUGS AT HEARTSTRINGS OF TOWNSFOLK

Splendid cooperation is being shown by townspeople in the third annual Rice Bowl drive for the benefit of the American Bureau for Medical Aid to China. Mrs. Bob Wright, chairman of the local chapter, revealed early this week shortly after launching the campaign.

Funds raised between now and December 15 will go toward caring for wounded Chinese soldiers, air raid victims and the thousands of Chinese suffering from privations experienced during the four years of war, and will enable the Bureau to continue shipping ambulances, medical and surgical supplies to China.

Volunteer workers who have a morning or afternoon to give, and will preside at the table downtown where contributions are received should telephone the vice chairman of the local chapter, Grace B. Caukin, at 4088.

Sierra Madre sponsors for the drive this year include Dean and Mrs. Arnold Bode and the Misses Margaret and Burnaby Bode, Messers and Mesdames John S. Billheimer, Philip Senour, Val Miller, Paul Carter, Woodson Jones, Elmer Pulling, J. H. Irving, Thomas Schwartz, William Burr, Waverly Pratt, Perley Poore Sheehan, Lee Shippey, Richard Kern, Carl Hansen, R. D. Dodge, H. B. Ayers, Chas. Birne, Henry Burnham, A. J. Dewey, W. E. Doty, F. H. Hartman, Rudolph Hartman, W. S. Hull, C. G. Hunt-singer, C. W. Jones, C. B. Klunk.

CHRISTMAS EVE BY EDITH TATUM

A Night so still and starry fair,
So infinitely blessed—
A lowly stable, rough and rude,
Where Mary found her rest.

A crib of yellow straw
About which cattle nod,
And here in Bethlehem's quiet town
Was born the Son of God.

Theatre's Gift Of A Modern Range To Thrill Some Woman

A new, modern O'Keefe & Merritt gas range will be carried off the stage of the Wistaria Theatre next Wednesday evening, carted off to somebody's home, and some fortunate woman will get a real thrill out of cooking Thursday morning's breakfast on this last word in gas cookery. It will be her range, because it is to be given away absolutely free at the theatre at Wednesday's performance through an arrangement between the Wistaria Theatre and the Sierra Madre Hardware Co. The white enameled range, with all latest gas saving devices and appliances, will be taken fresh out of the hardware company's stock and is on exhibition now on the floor of the store.

Barnes, who is employed by the Firemen's Insurance Co., is now stationed in Sacramento and has not decided as to whether he will enter private practice.
